My Choice In a Girl

La Touche Hancock.

Oh, I would gladly marry,
If I could but chance to find A girl of tastes and habits Inexpensively inclined.
She mustn't want pin money,
She must flash her toilette,
Without the help of lady's maid,
And never get in debt.
Must love her husband better
Than a fashionable dress,
And find a true contentment
In domestic happiness.
Not lie in bed for breakfast,
Nor of earnest complaint.
If every night at dinner
She doesn't get champagne,
You find me such a charmer.
With health and temper good,
Then ask me if I'd marry,
I should rather think I would.

The Woman's Club and Other Busy Organizations Of Women

The "Education day" program of the Woman's club, given last Tuesday at the residence of Mrs. W. R. Brown, Mrs. Flora M. Jones on "Moral Training in the Public Schools," was full of advanced thought and high ideals, pointing out in a clear, practical manner, the lines along which moral training could be made a part of the public school curriculum with good to all and harm to none.

The next number was "Love's Rapture," the beautiful, passionate song that prince Ivan sang to Zara in Marie Correll's "Romance of Two Worlds," was given by Mrs. Earl J. Evans. Mrs.
Selver was accompanist.

The next paper, "Art and Music in the Public School," by Miss Alice Fitzpatrick, was one of the most meritorious ever read before the club, explaining well the practical, educational and esthetic values of these two branches of knowledge. Miss Fitzpatrick mentioned the need of an auditorium in each of the schools here. Aside from its advantage as a place of entertainment, an auditorium lends dignity as a setting for faculty and pupils, on occasions when subjects of general importance and interest are before the school; it also brings the school into closer touch with itself, so to speak.

"Romance," the closing piano number, was given by Miss Ellis, whose interpretation was most expressive.
Edward Bok's editors in "The Ladies Home Journal," on "Woman's Clubs and Their Resultant Evils" was the subject discussed by Mrs. W. L.
Crockett. She argued that Mr. Bok had wandered from the paths of his intimate knowledge and had reached rocky shoals of which he knew nothing.
The following were admitted to club membership: Mesdames H. Y.
Bills, Earl J. Evans, Misses Adelle
Paston, Monica Gallagher.

The courtesies of the club were extended to Mesdames M. J. Newman and E. W. Parker.

Card Clubs and Private Card Parties Afford Much Pleasure

Mrs. H. F. Kettler added much to the social pleasure of the week with two charming bridge parties, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons.

Mrs. F. M. Martin and her cousin, Miss Kathrin Wren, were the honor guests.

In the decorations a motif of red and green prevailed, effectively brought out with red carnations and ferns. Cut glass vases filled with these fragrant flowers, and the chandeliers and pictures were artistically entwined with lace ferns.

Brass candle sticks, holding red candles and shielded with shades of the same hue, added warmth and brilliancy.
On Wednesday Mrs. R. L. Burges and Mrs. C. A. Leavelle were the skillful players who secured two prizes—beautiful hand braided shirt waist patterns.

Thursday Mrs. T. W. Hison and Mrs.
Charles Pomeroy were the fortunate prize winners, also handsome hand braided shirt waist patterns.

After the games a delightful salad course was served, followed by the ice cream.

Social Clubs and Other Organizations Have Dances

On Wednesday evening the Terpel-chorean club entertained at a delightful

This was the third of the series that

The ballroom was decorated in holiday of the most interesting installations the club has ever held in El Paso, the committee in charge having made arrangements to please all. Very little speaking will be done, but there will

KRYPTOK

It used to be true that bifocal glasses were troublesome, and
"old" looking, and trying to the eyes. It is NOT true of KRYPTOKS—the new bifocals that look and wear like plain glasses, but give perfect near-and-far vision.
